MY SHIPS AT SEA.

BY SOPHIE SPANKLE. How many ships I've sent to sen— Buoyant with hope, and full of glee, How few return to me! Ships that I've freighted with my all, Drifted away beyond recall. But storms will rise, and storms will fall, And ships go down at sea!

Bow os, with sails all golden—bright With sunlight—they we passed from sight; While from the shore have I Kepi watch with eager eye, Until my slips have floated by The bine where see meits into aky; Until, with sails all proudly set, Just where the earth with leaven met, They vanished—while I lingered yet. But storms will come, and winds will bloomly ships are driven to and froBeand some go down at sea!
And some, mere wreeks, from out the past
Mere bull and spar and broken mast,
With all their treasuré overcast,
Float back to me.

And then I sigh o'er what I're lost, Weep o'er my life so tempest-tost— So cheerless and so drear! What bring they back but grief to me? But grief, and pain, and batsery, To rend my soul with lear!

These shaftered wrecks the crusi sea
Casts on the shore to torture me,
Are filled with phantoms dread;
Phantoms of all I've lost before—
Of hopes and joys dead in the yore;
Of hopes and loves that come no more;
And with these dead from unknown shore
Come other dead to mock me sore—
The cruel, living dead! But still, forgetting all my pain— My barks I isunch upon the main, To cross the heaving sea, Hoping that, when all storms are past, Some sunny port I'll reach at last, To find, with joy, all anchored fast, My ships awaiting me!

The students of Amherst College, by a special dispensation of the faculty, are to be permitted to attend a dancing school. Some time ago the young gentlemen asked for this privilege and were refused; but president and professors have apparently grown wiser. The dancing lessons are to be given in the gymnasium.

The students of Amherst College, by an mile of tape, ten pounds of raw cotton or two wire hemispheres, one wire basket to hold a bushel, four copies of the New York Heraid (triple sheet), one hundred and fifty yards of silk or other dress goods, five hundred yards of point lace, fourteen hundred yards fringe and other trimmings, twelve gross of buttons, one box pearl powder, one sautons, one box pearl powder, one sautickets, play bills and wedding cards, some scandal, a great deal of lost time and a very little sage; add a half grain of common sense, three scruple of religion, and a modicum of modes ty. Season with vanity and affectation and folly. Garnish with earrings, finger-rings, breast-pins, chains, pracelets, feathers and flowers to suit the taste. Pearls and diamonds may be thrown in if you have them; if not paste and pinchbeck from the dollar store will do.
